Task 6: Computing – To Share or not to share? answers

Scenario 1: Depends - People sometimes don't realise that what they find amusing might be embarrassing or even upsetting for their friend. Photos can also include something called metadata which can include information such as when and where a photo was taken which people can use to locate other people. Remember always check before sharing a photo/video of others.

Scenario 2: Depends - Some things might upset another child, especially if that child is younger than them. Videos can also contain metadata. Encourage them to think about the contents of a video and whether sharing it could offend or upset others.

Scenario 3: Not OK - It is possible to disable the chat function in online games. It is easy to block and report people who are harassing you or sending inappropriate messages. If this happens you should always tell a trusted adult who can help you block and/or report the user.

Scenario 4: Depends - as long as the request to share the address comes from a number you know. If it comes from an unknown number you can always check by calling them or asking an adult to call them. It is better to check and be safe than to give out personal information, even if it means your friend has to wait a little while longer.

Scenario 5: Yes, you should tell someone. It is better to get help than to worry about what might happen.

Scenario 6: Depends - depending on the content of the video. Make sure that it is suitable for all of your friends and comes from a safe source such as YouTube. Some videos can contain links to viruses or Malware, both of which are software that can damage your electronics or be used to spy on you. If in doubt, don't do it.

Scenario 7: Not OK - this isn't safe. Some people can use the photo to find out where you are. Always check with an adult who can post it for you if they believe it is safe.

Scenario 8: Not OK - You should never do this. Sharing personal information in a group with people you don't know can be dangerous.
